Constitution of the General Assembly of Partners (GAP)

A. Preamble
The General Assembly of Partners (GAP), originally a special initiative of the World Urban Campaign, became an independent self-organized platform of equal Partnership Constituent Groups at the Second Preparatory Committee meeting for Habitat III in April 2015. Its raison d’être was to provide a quick and simple means for all interested stakeholders to participate and have their voices heard during the formulation of the political outcome of the Habitat III Conference: the New Urban Agenda. It was thus founded as an innovation in inclusion, was included in the New Urban Agenda, and should be considered a model for future UN processes and meetings as recognized in the New Urban Agenda.

To be seen as a legitimate platform vis-à-vis member States, GAP adopted a formal constitution and presented proposals and recommendations for the New Urban Agenda on the basis of broad consensus among Partner Constituent Groups (PCGs). This modus operandi was instrumental in securing recognition for the GAP from the Bureau of the Habitat III Preparatory Committee, and, ultimately, it was an important factor in the inclusion in the New Urban Agenda of many of the issues dear to its various constituencies.

UN Member States approved the New Urban Agenda unanimously at the Habitat III Conference held in Quito in October 2016. They explicitly recognized and welcomed stakeholder engagement in several paragraphs, including paras 128, 162, 169 and others. At this time, GAP members voted overwhelmingly to continue the work of the organization. The Secretary General of the Habitat III Conference also recognized GAP as one of the important legacies of Habitat III, indicating his strong support for its innovative contributions in private meeting with the Executive Committee in Quito. Subsequently, the UN General Assembly adopted the New Urban Agenda on December 23, 2016 (A/RES/71/256).

This revised constitution seeks to guide the transformation and workings of a new phase of development and engagement of GAP (or GAP 2.0). Providing a voice for all stakeholders, especially those who have not been formally involved in, and recognized by, intergovernmental processes, remains the primary purpose of GAP. GAP 2.0 thus aims to incorporate effectively such voices into international convenings and meetings on sustainable urban development. Further, GAP 2.0 will comprise an active platform for sharing best practices and for forging effective policies, strategies, partnerships, business models and innovations to implement the New Urban Agenda and the urban dimension of the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda and other UN agreements.

GAP 2.0 (hereinafter referred to as GAP) recognizes the need for a flexible approach to the follow-up and implementation of the New Urban Agenda. For some, this will entail holding member states to account vis-a-vis agreed commitments. For others, it will involve work at the grassroots level. This will require a decentralized and yet convergent approach to its strategic planning, decision-making and programming.

There are thus significant differences between GAP 1.0 and GAP 2.0 due to the fact that the follow-up to the New Urban Agenda no longer involves negotiated outcomes. Rather, it will involve implementation and attendant reporting and monitoring. In this context, the systematic reinforcement and strengthening of GAP stakeholder voices (especially those from under-represented groups), in international convenings, meetings and fora on sustainable urban development are critical. Other factors shaping GAP 2.0 relate to three other matters:

- Number of potential stakeholders: the number of potential stakeholders, actors and partners will increase exponentially as many more stakeholders and partners will be directly involved with implementation than those who were interested in the inter-governmental negotiation process leading up to Habitat III;

- Shift in focus: While member States will continue their work, there will inevitably be a shift in focus to sub-national governments, public and private agencies and authorities, and non-governmental entities that will be directly involved with member States in implementation and in providing the information that member States will report on;

- Shift in operational centre of gravity: there will be a corresponding shift in the operational centre of gravity from New York and a central conference secretariat to a wide range of multilateral and bilateral agencies and multi-stakeholder organizations operating from and based in all regions of the world;

GAP will need to evolve in the face of this decentralization and considerably increased complexity, continuing to strive to speak with one voice, but also recognizing the need for more flexible decision-making. For these and other reasons, the revised constitution of the GAP is based on the following architecture:

- GAP is a coalition of partners committed to supporting and/or collaborating with each other’s agendas, and to sharing their respective experiences, expertise and knowledge in the implementation of the New Urban Agenda;

- Two or more partners can form a GAP partnership to undertake a specific action or set of actions related to the implementation of the New Urban Agenda. Those actions will form an integral part of the GAP program of activities as elaborated in the terms of reference for partnerships appended to this Constitution.
Collective decision-making will remain for major decisions of, for example, a financial nature (annual budget, budgetary allocations, etc.) or common positions related to the New Urban Agenda implementation and monitoring;

The Plenary meeting will serve as an open platform for discussion among all members of GAP present and may forward recommendations about GAP activities to the Executive Council for its consideration.

The Executive Council will serve as the decision-making body of the General Assembly of Partners and is made up of two co-chairs from each PCG and a president and vice-president.

As a coalition of partners, pursuing interrelated but diverse goals aimed at multiple centers of power, the GAP Executive Council will strive for consensus. If the Executive Council cannot reach consensus, it will submit the matter to a vote with decisions on substantive matters requiring a two-thirds majority; decisions on procedural matters requiring simple majority of those present and voting provided the quorum is met.

The Constitution, By-Laws and Terms of Reference documents below reflect these assumptions.
